FIRE PREVENTION

The Governor has declared a fire prevention week for the state. Its purpose is to have each citizen clean up his yards, waste containers, rubbish piles or anything that is likely to catch fire and cause property damage. This fire prevention week is very timely.

Residents of Pocahontas county have other valuable properties to protect from the ravages of fire—the Monongahela National Forest—a large part of which is embraced in our county needs every one's care if it is to remain beautiful and productive for future generations.

Our pioneering forefathers cleared some of the finest timber from the green slopes of West Virginia. In those days wood was plentiful and the land had to be cleared for agriculture. Then before the great timber resources of the South and West were tapped our state enjoyed great prosperity from logging. Even then lumber was plentiful and many times trees were removed to obtain only one log, the remainder being left to rot. When one stops to think that it takes several hundred years to grow a tree of merchantable size, such practices were indeed a waste.

Added to this waste, timber operators would set fire to trees they felled that they did not want so as to clear a path for the removal of other trees farther back from their skid road. Bear in mind this was done all over the country and millions of feet of timber disappeared into thin air. Unfortunately these practices benefited only that generation of land owners. They did not have foresight enough to consider what future generations of Americans would have to have to enjoy employment and the beauty of the forests.

However, the future is not as dark as it might be. People are learning to realize that what we once had might easily be had again. With a little effort on our part not one acre of our timberlands need ever burn unless set by lightning or other uncontrollable agency.

How can we all do our part to make Pocahontas county more attractive to ourselves, our children, our out-of-town visitors? The solution is one that needs little discussion—let us be more careful with fire not only around our homes, but in our recreational spots. We all enjoy hunting for game and fish, we like to camp where everything is green and clean not fire scarred and dirty.

The Forest Ranger at Marlinton has been sent here to take care of our timberland. One of his duties is to prevent fires through education of the public. Another is to actually put out every fire that he hears about. To assist him, he has lookout towers manned by local men who know the country and can direct men into the fire to get it under control and out as fast as possible. The CCC camps aid in manpower and supervision to put out fires. The West Virginia Conservation Commission cooperates with the Federal Government in combining all their resources to the elimination of the fire menace.

Citizens of Pocahontas County, you are asked to offer your assistance in reporting fires and assist in putting them out. If you are burning brush, please report that fact to the ranger so that false alarms may be eliminated and the costs of putting out a fire held to a minimum. Hunters, remember that a carelessly thrown away match or cigarette might start a large fire. Farmers, when you are burning new ground be sure you have plenty of men to take care of the fire in case it gets away from you. Your neighbor does not want his land to burn over. Any fire that starts on your land and gets away from you into National Forest land lays you open for paying the costs of putting that fire out.

The slogan of the day is "Conservation."

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Wednesday was the ninetieth anniversary of the birth of Hon. Mathew John McNeel. The occasion was marked by a dinner at the home of his nephew, John Lanty McNeel, at Millpoint. A number of close relatives were invited in.

Mathew John McNeel was born October 10, 1844, at the McNeel homestead, in the Little Levels, where a John McNeel has resided since 1768. He was the youngest child of John and Harriet Lockridge McNeel. His father died while his son was yet young. At the age of seventeen years he answered the call of service in the defense of his state, and through the war between the states saw arduous and honorable service as a soldier in the 19th Virginia Cavalry. He is the last remaining member of his family, and so far I can not recall the last of Captain W. L. McNeel's company of soldiers. In recognition of his sterling qualities as a citizen and business man, it has been the desire of his fellow citizens to honor Mr. McNeel with public office whenever it would consent to allow his name to go before the people. He was served his country as sheriff, commissioner of the county court, and member of the legislature. Upon the organization of the Bank of Marlinton he was named its president and for thirty-five years he has been reelected at each annual election. He is regular in his attendance upon the bi-weekly meetings of the executive board. Active in business and public affairs, Mr. McNeel has been equally energetic and prominent in the work of his church, and as Ruling Elder of the Presbyterian church, he often sits in the courts of that body—Presbytery, Synod and General Assembly. Few people reach the ripe old age of ninety years, and few of these retain the bodily strength and mental vigor of this grand old man, the Honorable Mathew John McNeel.

Last Thursday morning about 1 o'clock, the fire alarm aroused the town. Smoke was coming from the Royal Drug store. It was found to be from a hot bearing of the refrigerating machine.
